STEEL PLANTS SURRENDER TO SHORTER HOURS

Announcement Made By
Harding in Farewell
To Continent

TALKS AT TACOMA
Chief Executive Enroute
For Northern Section of
United States

Tacoma, Wash., July 6.—President Harding's farewell to continental United States was signaled by an announcement by him of the surrender of the American steel manufacturers to the eight-hour day in all branches of the steel industry.

The announcement was made by the president in his speech at the stadium here just before embarking on the transport Henderson for Alaska. It included correspondence between the president and representatives of the steel manufacturers, headed by Judge Elbert H. Gary, in which they stated their willingness to abolish the 12-hour day and institute the eight-hour day as soon as sufficient labor is available for the change.

The president regarded the action of the steel manufacturers as a most favorable omen of the coming of a time when the 12-hour schedule shall no longer obtain in any branch of American industry. Making public for the first time the correspondence exchanged between the white house and steel group, the president congratulated the latter upon their acquiescence in the popular demand for shorter hours in the steel industry.

In making the report from the steel manufacturers part of his speech, the president pointed out that in many ways the nation is making progress in social evolution. The people are constantly striving for conditions of greater inspiration and fit contentment," he said, and the action of the steel representatives constitutes "a very notable forward step." One of the greater avenues of progress in American life, the president added, lies in the constant recognition by American industry of its obligations to our society as a whole, and that many of our most successful steps in social progress are made through the voluntary action of industry itself "in amelioration of those hardships that have grown from the rapid growth of industry."

Pledge Received.

"Early in the administration, feeling that a working day of this length was an anachronism in American life, that regardless of any other consideration, it did not permit of the proper development of citizenship and family life, I suggested to the steel industry that they should appoint a committee to develop methods for its abolition. After an investigation extending over some 18 months, the steel manufacturers came to the conclusion that in view of the present shortage of labor such a revolution in the industry was infeasible. Upon the receipt of this report I still felt that a pledge on the part of the steel manufacturers that they would undertake to respond to manifest public opinion in this matter would be welcomed by our people as a whole and would be received as a great boon by American workers. It is in response to this suggestion that I have received the pledge to which I have referred.

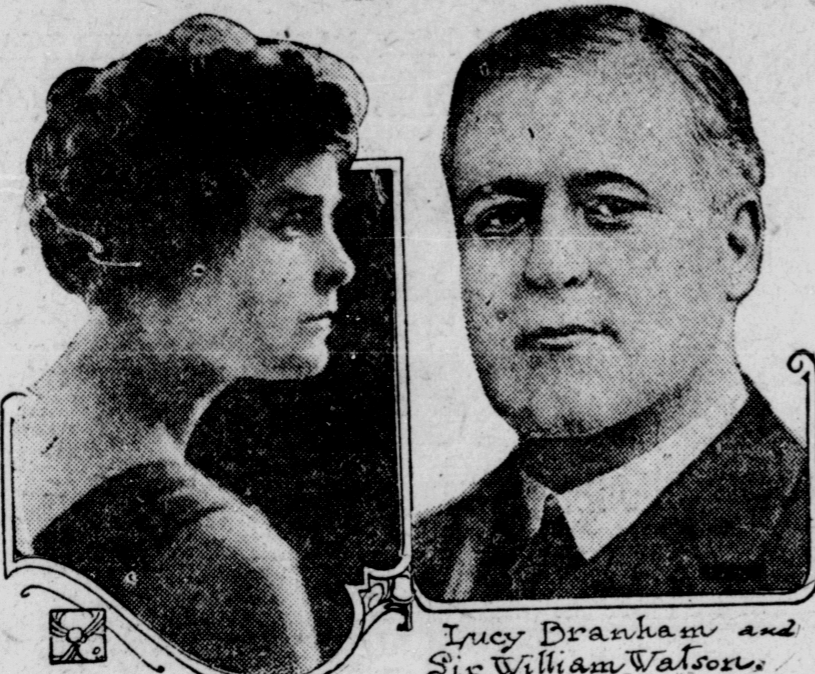

"I wish to congratulate the steel industry on this important step. It will heal a sore in American industrial life which has been the cause of infinite struggle and bitterness for over a generation and it marks an accomplishment from the conscience of industry itself, a recognition of responsibility from employer to employee that gives us faith in right solutions of the many tangled problems that are the concomitant of the rapid growth of America. It is an example that I trust the few other continuous processes in industry which still maintain the 12-hour shift may follow. I should be proud if my administration were marked by the final passing of the 12-hour working day in American life."

The president also renewed his plea to build up an American merchant marine. He told of the defeat of the subsidy bill, which, he said, seemed to him the best solution offered, although congress thought otherwise.

ROCKED BY EXPLOSION.

Dover, O., July 6.—Mineral City, 12 miles east of here, was rocked when 12 sticks of dynamite exploded, one-half mile from the village. The dynamite is believed to have been stolen by boys. Every window within a radius of half a mile of the explosion was shattered, young trees uprooted and poles splintered.

DOES "PETTICOAT GOVERNMENT" RULE?

Sir William Watson, noted English poet, has asserted that America is a nation of "women worshippers," that the United States is ruled by a "petticoat government" and that American women were primarily responsible for the eighteenth amendment and subsequent more-or-less prohibition. Miss Lucy Branham, Carnegie medal winner for heroism and a leader of the National Woman's Party, has characterized his statements as "bunk." America, she said, is "male-ruled," and women haven't the least share "of the political or economic energy which is their just due." Chief credit for prohibition, she added, must go to the middle class business man, who could not afford to drink and did not want to see his workers drunk.

CABINET IN SHARP CONFLICT OVER POLICIES FOR ALASKA

Powerful Fleet of Revenue Cutters Will be Employed To Check Activities of Lawbreakers, Whose Operations Are Becoming Bolder

Aboard U. S. S. Henderson, enroute to Alaska with President Harding, July 6.—President Harding is bound today with a sharp conflict existing within his cabinet over the policies that should be adopted in governing the vast northern territory. How serious this cabinet division may be, remains to be determined but it prevails and the controversy likely will be the subject of a great many conferences between the President and his cabinet aides who are accompanying him into the far north.

The cabinet split hinges about the control of Alaska. Dr. Hubert Work, secretary of the Interior believes that the whole of the territory, equal in area to one fifth of the continental U. S. and with natural resources yet virtually untouched, should be placed under the administrative control of a single department at Washington—preferably the Department of the Interior.

Henry C. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, does not agree and there are indications that he will resist strongly any attempts that may be made to take away from his department which controls vast forestry reserves in the territory.

In some respects the controversy is a periculation of the old Ballinger-Pinchot row over forestry conservation.

More recently the question of which department should control the public lands was the subject of dispute between Wallace and Albert S. Fall, who resigned as secretary of the Interior last March.

Fall's retirement temporarily smoothed over the difficulty, but with the advent of President Harding's Alaska trip it has come again to the fore in such a way that it may embarrass Mr. Harding in his attempts to reach a solution of the Alaskan problem.

"Control of Alaska is now vested in 25 separate departments and bureau in Washington," Secretary Work told International News Service today. "I don't think there is any question but that this division of authority with its inevitable delay and red tape is responsible for the backwardness of the territory in commercial and agricultural development."

GERMANY REFUSES ENGLAND'S PROFFER

London, July 6.—Premier Baldwin found himself in a quandary today in the reparations tangle.

Preliminary inquiries of Germany, it was reported, indicated Germany is not willing to enter separate negotiations with England on reparations unless England is prepared to guarantee there will be no further occupation of German territory.

England is unable to give such a guarantee and with progress out of that direction, is awaiting the next move by France.

SALARY RAISED; PRINCIPAL QUIT

Tiffin, O., July 6.—Because his salary was increased $200 a year, Ralph Brode, principal of the Lykens Centralized High school at Bloomville, O., resigned today.

Brode had been paid $1,800. The board of education boosted his salary to $2,000.

"The district is too poor to stand the increase," Brode said. "I quit."

AERONAUTS ESCAPE.

Bryan, O., July 6.—After the gas valve of a balloon in the international balloon race failed to work and ballast was exhausted, Roy S. Donaldson, pilot of Springfield, Ill., and his assistant, P. A. Erick, leaped 15 feet to the ground, eight miles north of here. The balloon, relieved of its human cargo, shot upward and disappeared.

TRANSFER MRS. STANNARD CASE TO OHIO CAPITAL

Defense Testimony to Occupy Friday and Saturday

MAC AYEAL ON STAND

Defends Matron of Girls' School and Refutes Charges

Delaware, O., July 6.—Submission of testimony by persons supporting Mrs. Mae Stannard in her appeal for reinstatement, following her recent removal by State Welfare Director Harper as chief matron at the Girls' Industrial school, near here, will mark the hearings to be conducted today and Saturday by the state Civil Service Commission at the school.

The hearing, it is expected, will be transferred to Columbus, Monday. Although the prosecution practically rested its case late yesterday it is understood that counsel for Director Harper will call a number of witnesses before the hearing is concluded at Columbus.

Dr. H. S. MacAyeal, Akron, former state welfare director, who took the stand late yesterday, was the first witness called on behalf of Mrs. Stannard. Dr. MacAyeal was followed by Dr. Edmund S. Baehr, psychiatrist at the state bureau of juvenile research, Columbus, who also testified in favor of Mrs. Stannard.

MacAyeal testified he had appointed Mrs. Stannard as chief matron after an exacting nationwide canvass of prison welfare workers, and that she had been highly indorsed and stood first in the civil service examination for the position. He said the use of private automobiles of the institution and the payment for them had been with his knowledge and approval, because the state cars were in a hopeless condition. In regard to padlocks being used on girls' doors, Dr. MacAyeal said that they were placed there after Mrs. Stannard had complained about the old system.

Dr. MacAyeal declared he had authorized the transfer of girls from this institution to the Marysville prison after the attorney general had told him that he had full authority to do so. "I gave Mrs. Stannard a free hand in reorganizing the school, including installation of the honor system, a demoted cottage, and the abolishment of corporal punishment," Dr. MacAyeal testified.

"I was greatly pleased with Mrs. Stannard's work and her treatment of the girls," said MacAyeal, "and I never knew of any cruelties under her administration."

BATTLE CRUISER IN OHIO WATERS

Columbus, July 6.—Ohio will get its cruiser the Wilmington, within the next 30 days, according to announcement by Navy Secretary Denby. It is now at Portsmouth, N. H., being reconditioned. Captain A. F. Nicklett, Toledo, commander of the Ohio naval militia, will command the ship on its trip through the St. Lawrence and the lakes to Cleveland, where it will be stationed. It will be officered and manned by members of the Ohio naval militia.

MOTHER OF FIVE HELD FOR MURDER

New York, July 6.—A charge of murder was filed today against Mrs. Louis Arnold, 46, mother of five children who confessed to having stabbed to death Vincent Clavacca, father of nine children, after she learned that he was a married man and had deceived her.

At her arraignment Mrs. Arnold admitted killing her lover.

"I did not know he was married," she said. "He told me he would marry me. I believed him for seven years. Then I discovered he had a wife and nine children of his own. He told me he had other wives in other towns, too."

PRELIMINARY HEARING OF BLAIR POSTPONED

Preliminary hearing of Bert Blair, of this city, charged with conspiracy to violate the Volstead Act, was postponed Thursday by United States Deputy Commissioner Carl Lenz.

Blair was arrested here last week and taken to Dayton by Deputy U. S. Marshall Pratt, who is now ill. Blair entered a not guilty plea when arraigned and was released under $3,000 bond. His preliminary hearing has been postponed to July 27.

GOVERNMENT TO START NEW WAR AGAINST LIQUOR, NARCOTIC AND ALIEN SMUGGLERS

Split Hinges About Whether Vast Northern Territory Should be Placed Under Control of Single Department.

Washington, July 6.—New plans for a more vigorous campaign to combat smugglers of liquor, narcotics and aliens, through an enlarged coast guard service, were outlined by government officials today.

Since a scheme to employ the army and navy for this purpose has been abandoned, the government has decided to concentrate its efforts hereafter in a more powerful fleet of revenue cutters.

Dry leaders in Congress are being lined up behind a program for greatly increased appropriations for the coast guard. Other angles of the plan call for more funds also for the immigration and customs services.

Officials said today that the extraordinary measures must soon be adopted to hold the smugglers in check.

Their operations are steadily becoming bolder according to official reports. Daily advices from prohibition and customs authorities show that smugglers are extending their activity, and are meeting with little resistance, while public enforcement agencies are handicapped by insufficient forces.

The administration may insist upon an additional appropriation of $6,000,000 to supplement the $10,000,000 allowed the coast guard this fiscal year, to permit expansion of the service.

STRIKING ENGLISH DOCK WORKERS ARE FORCING UP PRICES

More Than 50,000 Men Reported Out in British Ports

London, July 6.—Disregarding the orders of union leaders to return to work, the dockworkers are gaining recruits and the strike is growing in many ports.

It is estimated that 18,000 are now out in London, making with the men who have gone out in other cities a total of 50,000 added to Britain's idle army. Many stevedores and porters swelled the ranks of the strikers and the railway men threaten to refuse to handle any cargoes unless unloaded by unionists.

The Daily Herald, labor organ, comments: "We are convinced that no good ever comes from breaking agreements made by responsible and properly authorized representatives." Meanwhile hundreds of ships are lying idle, their cargoes held up. Food is decaying and fruit is rotting on the docks and general business is becoming dislocated. An effect of the strike is shown in the rise of a cent a pound on refrigerated meat. The shortage of flour is expected to lead to an increase in the price of bread.

The trouble was caused by attempts of the employers to enforce an agreement for a reduction of a shilling a day in the men's pay. The men claim that the reduction is not justified in the high prices for food and clothing. A great mass meeting called on the government to order an immediate inquiry into the cost of living. To add to the gloom the great railway workers' union is refusing to accept a reduction of six shillings a week in wages of the shopworkers and threatens a general tie-up.

LENGLEN WINS AGAIN.

Wimbledon, England, July 6.—Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen today successfully retained her title as woman's world tennis champion when she defeated Miss Kathleen McKane, the English woman, 6-2, 6-2.

Suzanne won the first set in decisive fashion when her opponent showed nervousness and was continually over-driving.

SKULL FRACTURED.

Cincinnati, July 6.—George Munroe, 3, when visiting his aunt at Shade more, was struck on the head by a quoit, suffering a fractured skull.

JOINT MEETING ON WAGE ISSUE IS IN SESSION

Result of Conference Will Mean Peace or War in Anthracite Regions

SEPTEMBER 1 IS DATE

Unless Agreement Reached Walkout for That Date Seems Inevitable

Atlantic City, N. J., July 6.—The question of peace or war in the coal fields hangs in the balance as the anthracite joint wage conference prepares to begin what promises to be a long series of negotiations to take the place of the present agreement which expires August 31. The first session of the conference will be held this afternoon.

Unless an agreement is reached it seems inevitable that a strike will be called for September 1.

Representatives of the operators now here for what is regarded as the most important industrial conference in years, declined to say whether they would support the movement for "open covenants openly arrived at." It is believed, however, that they will insist on secret sessions.

As the hour of the conference approached there was every indication that both sides expected there would be a long drawn out affair with an agreement if one is to be reached commencing only after days of tedious negotiations.

Little was expected to be accomplished at the opening session beyond effecting preliminaries, organization and the formal proclamation of the miners' demands. These demands, as formulated at the Scranton meeting of the workers last week, embrace 11 specific points, summarized as follows:

1.—Complete recognition of the Mine Workers of America, with a two year contract beginning September 1, 1923.

2.—Twenty per cent increase in contract wage scales, all men to be granted an increase of $2 per day.

3.—Uniformity and equalization of all day rates to skilled mechanics with ninety cents an hour as a basis.

4.—Eight Four day for all men employed in and around collieries irrespective of their occupation.

5.—Where coal is paid for by the car, the ton basis shall be 2,240 pounds.

6.—That the consideration rate for work under abnormal conditions and for lead work equal the average daily earnings of contract miners under normal conditions.

7.—That jack hammers and other tools be furnished the miners free of charge.

8.—Minimum rate of 20 cents per inch for refuse and 30 cents per inch for blasting top and bottom rock.

9.—That umpire shall render decisions within 30 days after disposal of cases by conciliation board.

10.—That wage schedules be brought up to date and that agreement on rates for new work be made before starting such work.

11.—That employees of stripping contractors be brought under same scale of wages as demanded by miners.

In addition, negotiators for the miners are urged to secure an agreement regarding the price of coal charged employees.

Asked for a statement regarding the miners' demands, Lewis said the demands spoke for themselves.

EX-PUPILS BEGIN EXODUS FROM HOME AFTER RE-UNION

More than 500 members of the Ex-Pupils' Association of the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home, who attended one of the best reunions in the history of the organization here this week, began their exodus Friday.

The reunion closed Thursday night with the annual ball, which because of recent rains and threatening weather was held in one of the school buildings. The ball is usually staged on the dancing platform erected on the lawn in front of the Administration Building.

Ex-pupils who, years ago, had worked in the printing department, learning the trade and helping to publish the Home Weekly, organ of the institution, issued a "Reunion Extra" of the Weekly Thursday. Men and women, who had long since given up the printing profession and others, who are still following that trade, took up "stick" and "rule" and lived over again days when they were pupils at the institution.

News of the reunion and other copy for the paper was written by the ex-pupils and they also did all of the printing and press work. Those who assisted in getting out the special paper were I. W. Thrasher, Newport, Ky., past association president and chairman of the building committee who is connected with the Methodist Book Concern, Cincinnati; George Wareham, Cleveland; E. C. Cobus; Mrs. Alpha Gardner, Lakeside; Earl C. Bear, Cleveland; J. A. Berry, Dayton; James Baxter, Xenia; James H. Thrasher, Homer O. LeFever and Warren Moore, of Springfield; C. Frank Betz, Indianapolis News, Indianapolis; J. L. Benjamin, Cincinnati; Dr. George H. Lampe, Cincinnati; James Fluker, Dayton; Delmond W. Lawrence, Lorain; W. A. Shoemaker, Dayton; J. H. Augustus, Springfield; Mrs. Nellie Smith Gorman, Lancaster and Miss Anna Belle Flowers, Columbus.

After the extra was issued, copies were sold for ten cents apiece, and the proceeds applied to the building fund, with which the proposed Memorial Library will be erected. The association Thursday accepted the plans of Robert S. Harsh, state architect, for the library which will be erected as a memorial to Civil War veterans and the women who inspired establishment of the Xenia institution.

The structure will be located east of the Administration Building. It will be one story in height, 40 by 100 feet in dimensions and constructed of steel and brick. The cost will be about $20,000 of which amount approximately half has been raised.

Boils

THERE is a reason for everything that happens. Common-sense kills misery. Common-sense also stops boils! S. S. S. is the common-sense remedy for boils, because it is built on reason. Scientific authorities admit its power! S. S. S. builds blood-power, it builds red blood-cells. That is what makes fighting-boils. Fighting-boils destroys impurities. It fights boils. It fights pimples! It fights skin eruptions! It always wins! Mr. V. D. Schaff, 557 15th street, Washington, D. C., writes:

"I tried for years to get relief from a bad case of boils. Everything failed until I took S. S. S. I am now absolutely cured, and it was S. S. S. that did it."

Making Railroad History in 1923

Pennsylvania Railroad System
The Standard Railroad of the World

DURING the remainder of the present year the railroads will be confronted with the task of handling the greatest volume of traffic in American history. The demands for freight service in that period seem certain to exceed the peaks of war time and the boom of 1920.

To make good in 1923 means that all previous records must be broken. That is a big job for railroad managers and employees. There must be no failure—for failure would be a national disaster. In meeting the situation the railroads have solemnly pledged themselves to a vast program of concerted and cooperative action.

The success of that program is contingent upon the wholehearted support of the public, the loyalty of every man in the railroad service, and freedom from the ill-timed and demoralizing interjection of politics. Any man who strives to make the railroads a political football in 1923 when they are grappling with the most difficult and momentous task in their history, may be stigmatized as an enemy of good government.

MATTERS OF PRINCIPLE.

When a man tells you that it is a matter of principle with him to do such and such a thing you usually find that he is trying to justify an act of a somewhat ungenerous character—such as entering a complaint against someone for discourtesy or neglect, or exacting the fulfillment of an obligation under harsh conditions, or pointing out with blunt frankness a friend's shortcomings, or refusing to contribute to the aid of a cause or an individual, or declining to make a loan to a friend. Perhaps every one of the acts that he thus justifies needs no justification, is in itself right and proper in the circumstances; unfortunately, explaining it on the ground of principle is likely to excite a question as to the nature of the principles that govern the person. For they seem to concern his own dignity and importance exclusively, his own rights and convenience—the duty of other people toward him rather than his duty toward other people.

Now the only principles on which a man may well pride himself are those that he somehow shrinks from announcing. It is a matter of principle with all decent people not to lie or cheat or betray, but anyone who called attention to some act of his as illustrating the principles of honesty and decency by which he was guided would be regarded with astonishment and even suspicion. The real "matters of principle" are the inner foundations on which the whole structure of character rests, and people do not talk about them, call attention to them, or explain them. Whenever we hear anyone say, "It is a matter of principle with me to," and so forth, we may be sure that it isn't any revelation of principle that he is about to give, but merely a side light on his egotism.

SUMMER FOOT TREATMENTS

I've headed this chat "summer foot treatments" because I want to emphasize the fact that the feet need different care in the hot weather, from what they do when it's cold. For one thing, they are apt to swell with the heat, and they perspire more readily. But it's the best time to treat them if they've been painful or unhealthy for in summer you wear low light shoes, which permit greater ventilation, and you can wear canvas slippers, which come nearer the ideal—the ideal being a sandal.

About treatments—if the feet perspire, powder them every day or twice a day. Use the fine sort of talcum made for babies, it's pure and soothing and any amount can be used. If you can't afford this, or if your feet are not very sensitive, take some laundry starch, sift the powder from the lumps—crush the lumps to make more powder—and mix one ounce of boric acid powder to every six or eight of the starch. This is cooling, soothing and antiseptic, and better than baby powder if the feet have a strong odor. In this case, however, use half starch and half boric acid.

Set bathing is very good for the feet, it makes them less tender. It is more cleansing than even soap and water, it does wonders in preventing corns. But if there are corns follow the usual treatment, soak the feet in hot water, preferably with bath salts added, or soda, cut or file off the callous, paint with colloidion, rub every day afterwards with cold cream.
It is a good plan to rest the feet during the hot weather by wearing low broad heel canvas oxfords, and for dress-up low heel canvas pumps, or plain kid sandals with heels as low as possible.

Blacky.—You can reduce the muscles of your face through massage, weighed but only use enough oil on the tips of the fingers to act as a lubricant. If 000.

You cannot have this work done for you, be sure to learn all about the movements before you attempt them 1923 model automobiles are equipped yourself; else you may stretch the skin or otherwise injure the contour of the face.

Mrs. F. H. W.—Diluted lemon juice, or that from cucumbers, will be all the bleach necessary for ordinary tanning. Always follow this treatment with cream or an oil application, as all bleaches neutralize the natural skin secretions leaving them parched if not supplied with an oil.

Winifred.—As you are too stout in so much of the body, a general reduction through the diet would be best for you in attaining a better proportioned figure.

S. B. T.—The expression "Sub Rosa" literally means "under the rose." One authority claims that once upon a time there existed in Rome a secret society which had the rose as an emblem. There are references on ancient tombs to the effect that the rose was an emblem of silence. Today's Talk

"THE HUGE AND THOUGHTFUL NIGHT"

The above line is from the writings of Walt Whitman. Whitman to me, is one of the greatest of those who have made America and the world great—because of the appreciation which he expressed, and left.

Whitman saw beauty in everything. He saw mystery, wonder and the manifestation of miracles all about him. All life was a strange revelation.

All through his writings you come across expressions just as beautiful as the one quoted at the head of this talk.

When you think of the night as Whitman did, then you feel that you have something of especial beauty coming to you as the shadows of the dying day close in upon you.

Sometimes I think of the soul as just "getting up" at night time—when all is quiet, when the little worries and irritations and unhappy bickerings of the day have all melted away.

"The huge and thoughtful night"—all decked out with its dome of shining stars, each individual star seeming to twinkle out a small message of love and best wishes from its seat in the sky to every pair of eyes looking up from the earth beneath.

How huge and thoughtful is this night under tropic skies, with the moon creeping up in the distance and towering palm trees bending over to catch the ripple of the ocean waters that so noiselessly tiptoe toward the shore. How huge also, from the still mountainside where mammoth peaks, fringed with snow, reach up to greet the glitter of the heavens. And how huge, again, far out in the country—perhaps from the porch of some farm house, with the cricket's chirp the night owl's hoot, or the whisper will's song to touch the air of the night.

After you have said goodbye to the day and to those whom you love—whether with your voice or spirit—take a look into the face of "the huge and thoughtful night" and then thank God that you are alive!

DUNKLE BUYS OUT KENNEDY INTEREST IN GROCERY STORES

W. J. Kennedy, president and founder of the Kennedy Grocery Company, has sold his interests in the corporation to R. E. Dunkle, secretary and treasurer of the company, it was announced Friday.

The transfer was made Thursday, Mr. Dunkle assuming immediately charge of the operation of the business. The sale includes Mr. Kennedy's interests in three grocery stores in Xenia owned and operated by the company.

They are: Store No. 1, at 129 East Main Street; Store No. 2, at 33 West Main Street, and Store No. 3, at 9 Cincinnati Avenue. All stores are operated on the cash and carry plan, having been founded on that principle by Mr. Kennedy five years ago. The same policy will be continued, according to Mr. Dunkle, who now owns controlling stock in the corporation.

Mr. Kennedy founded Store No. 1 five years ago, and later extended his operations to start Store No. 2. For a time he operated a store on the same principle in Yellow Springs. He operated the business privately until a year and one-half ago, when Mr. Dunkle bought an interest and the company was incorporated.

After the incorporation, the company inaugurated two stores, at 9 Cincinnati Avenue, now known as Store No. 3, and at Main Street and Dayton Avenue, which was known as Store No. 4. This store was later discontinued.

Mr. Kennedy has not announced his plans for the future.

JAMES M. DILLON DIES SUDDENLY IN COLUMBUS FRIDAY

James M. Dillon, 62, former Xenian died suddenly Friday at his home in Columbus.

Brief news of his death was received by Xenia friends Friday afternoon. No cause of death was given. Mr. Dillon received a fractured skull when he was struck by an automobile in Columbus while crossing a street about six months ago.

For months after the accident Mr. Dillon was confined to a Columbus hospital, and for several weeks his condition was serious. He later slowly recovered and had been at his home for some time. He was planning to resume his position as traveling salesman for the Dunn & McCarthy Shoe Company, Auburn, N. Y., when his sudden death occurred. Friends here believe his death was due to injuries.

Mr. Dillon made his home here for many years some time ago, and was interested in The Xenia Shoe Manufacturing Company for which firm he was a traveling salesman for years. After severing his connection with the local company he removed his family to Columbus, where he made his home.

Surviving is his widow and one son Ralph Dillon who has been covering his father's route since his illness. An announcement of time of his funeral has not been received here.

LIGHTNING STRIKES GEYER RESIDENCE

Damage estimated at about $50 was entailed when lightning struck the George D. Geyer residence, 512 North Galloway street, during a rain and electrical storm Tuesday shortly before noon. The lightning damaged the chimney and ripped off several shingles. Soot from the chimney escaped from an open draught in the basement and showered newly washed clothes hanging there.

LIGHTED LANTERN USED NEAR GASOLINE AND THEN--

Diogenes searched for an honest man with a lantern but it remained for Sam Graham, Valley Road to search for gasoline using the same primitive methods.

Graham used a lighted lantern when he went to a shed at his home to draw gasoline from a tank. The shed and its contents, including a wheat binder, corn harvester and minor farm implements were burned up.

Styles BY LENORE

One of the decorative items of too summer outfit is the colorful woodblock linen coat which may be worn with a pleated skirt and sport blouse, or over a cotton frock. It is also equally attractive when made of one of the novel cottons, embroidered all over in a rich medley of colors.

Usually these coats are most chic when cut on perfectly straight lines like the model shown at the left, which is bound all around in black, but for a large busted woman they fit more gracefully when made with a band that fits snugly about the hips.

For country wear a very good-looking costume is made of English flannel, caramel shade with red and green overplaid for the dress, cut on chemise lines. A Lanvin green coat with collar, cuffs, and pockets trimmed with plaid, completes the costume, the odd cut of the coat, revealing an organdie jabot, being one of its new points.

One other point—note the little felt hats which these twin ladies are wearing. French women are preferring it to the cloche. It is just as small and snug, but turned up in front, and they call it the Breton.

PARK PROGRAMS ARE ANNOUNCED

But games in the Industrial League for Saturday include the Pennsylvania Railroad-Commercials tilt at Washington Park at 3:45; Binders-Blueheart game, Reserve Field, 2:30 and Shees-Kelly Kords game at Willow Tree Park at 2:30 o'clock.

To save the lives of pedestrians this new safety-bumper has been offered for testing to the Chicago Safety Council. By means of a mechanical device the driver is able to drop the bumper as a fender, and a furler apron is extended upward at the same time, thus making a canvas hammock at the front of the automobile. This scoops up the victim and carries him along unhurt until the car can be brought to a stop.

FEDERAL PRISONERS MAY BE CONFINED IN COUNTY JAIL

Federal prisoners may be confined in the Greene County Jail soon. Crowded jail conditions at Dayton may lead to prisoners being kept for federal action being sent here, it is said.

U. S. Marshal Stanley Borkwith expressed such an opinion to Sheriff Morris Sharp in Dayton Thursday. Marshal Borkwith said crowded conditions would make it necessary to find another jail for temporary use at least.

The Marshal was informed the Greene County Jail has 16 cells, in each of which two prisoners might be kept. There are only four prisoners in the County Jail now.

Marshal Borkwith said he may take advantage of the available cells here by sending federal prisoners to this city for confinement.

SECOND ATTEMPT TO HALT BOND ISSUE FOR SCHOOL HOUSE

The second legal attempt to prevent the erection of a centralized school District was started in Common Pleas Court Friday when a petition was filed by Ham Fields, and others asking that the Board of Education be restrained from selling a $75,000 bond issue advertised for sale, July 14.

The plaintiffs are taxpayers in the district. They allege that the Board of Education has advertised $75,000 worth of bonds for sale July 14, to buy a site and build a school building. The petitioners allege the proceeds will be insufficient to construct an adequate school building and that the action would therefore be a waste of funds and a wanton abuse of the discretion of the board.

The petitioners allege, further, that the revenues of the school district will be insufficient to operate such a school and that as a result the district would become hopelessly involved financially. They ask for a temporary restraining order and that on the final hearing it be made permanent.

The petitioners are, Ham Fields, H. M. Thomas, W. Berryhill, C. M. Austin, J. F. Penewit, J. S. Turner, C. E. Schwartz, E. H. Rhonemus, George Penewit, Clem Penewit, C. V. Mason, J. W. Anthony, W. E. CHAUTAUQUA TENT WILL BE PITCHED ON EAST CHURCH ST.

The Chautauqua Site Committee announces that the Chautauqua tent will be pitched on the lot just east of Mr. Lester Buell's residence on East Church Street. The site will be more convenient than any that has ever been secured for the chautauqua it is said.

The proceeds from the sale of season tickets will go for the benefit of local charities and will be divided among the Red Cross and the Social Service League. The committee urges the buying of the season tickets as the larger the sales the larger will be the amount that is turned over to the Social Service and Red Cross. All of the proceeds from the single admissions will go to the Redpath Company. The season tickets must be bought before the 15th. The price for adults is $2.50 for the season and $1.25 for children's tickets. Any one wishing tickets who has not been solicited may get them by phoning Miss Fannie Haynes of West Church Street.

The committee reports that the sale of tickets is going well but the committee is anxious for a large season ticket sale in order that the amount for the local organization may be substantial ones. The cost of single admissions to only three or four entertainments will be as much as the cost of the entire season tickets so all planning to attend any of the numbers will find it a saving to have the season tickets.

All ticket solicitors are asked to report to the Secretary Wednesday, July 11th.

FESS URGES WORLD COURT IN ADDRESS

Senator S. D. Fess of Yellow Springs urged U. S. Cooperation in the world court plan in an address before the International Christian Citizenship Conference at Winona Lake Ind.

American history, more than any other national record, demonstrates the success of arbitration in international disputes, Senator Fess said. He declared that international concord can come only from international contracts in urging delegates to support the judicial process as against the war process of settlement.

"If the court was obligatory," he said, "the United States would not adhere to it, and I should certainly oppose it because we have not reached the place where the United States can be forced to submit any question that might come up to some court. The provision is that only disputes are submitted that are submitted by both parties. If one of them says no, then, of course, it is not submitted."

HELD ON CHARGE OF KIDNAPING GIRL

Phil Ricco, 37, Fifth street and Wayne Avenue, Dayton, is being held by Dayton Police on a charge of criminal assault growing out of the alleged kidnaping of Helen Mendon, 13, of 46 Green street, Dayton, Wednesday night.

Ricco is alleged to have kidnaped the girl near her home, taken her to a lonely spot near Alpha in this country, and is said to have attacked her. The girl was forced to walk home, police were told, and arrived home at eight o'clock Thursday morning. Ricco's arrest followed.

decorated with colored sealing wax:

A Sealing Wax Bag-Top.—A clever woman of my acquaintance originated this idea: She went to a five-and-ten-cent store and bought a nickel bag-top and chain-handle (the kind to which one sews velvet to make a handbag). This metal top was decorated with raised flowers. She was not satisfied with her purchase, so thought she would try covering the entire thing (except the link-chain) with different colored sealing wax. She simply heated sticks of black, dark blue, gold and dark green sealing wax and daubed these onto the metal bag-top in a hit-or-miss pattern, making the blotches about the size of a dime. Proceed as follows: Hold the daubed bag-top over the flame a minute or two, to remelt the wax so that it spreads and blends. Make a brown velvet bag to attach to this bag-top.

A Sealing Wax Flower Bowl.—Any prettily shaped pottery bowl or vase may be used to cover with sealing wax. Put on the wax indaubs, then hold the vase over the flame, to blend the wax and glaze it.

How to Paint with Sealing Wax.—Put small pieces of sealing wax in a saucepan and heat slowly till melted. Then, to three parts of this melted wax add one part of denatured alcohol (which keeps the wax soft). Use as any paint.

Powder-Puff Holder for the Bureau.—Take a long-stemmed wine glass or fruit cup large enough to hold a powder puff. Put small sealing wax roses around the top of this glass and on the flat glass disc at the bottom. To make these roses put a tiny drop of melted sealing wax on the glass, make a hole in the center of this drop (using a steel pin), then make three slashes in the drop around the hole. Sometimes just a figure "S" will give the effect of rose-petals on one of these tiny roses. Cluster the rose-heads close together, making one blue rose, one yellow and one pink (or lavender). Make a tiny green leaf at one side. Tie a pink bow to the ivory ring at the top of the powder-puff and place the puff in its decorated glass holder.

THE MISFIT

By Jane Phelps

POIGNANT LONELINESS

Chapter XXXIX

New York has fitly been called "the hiding place for anguished souls," and so Natalie found it. It was not strange that she met no one she had known as Mrs. Crandell. Even Horace's business friends were all men of wealth who went to business in their motor cars, returning the same way, while Natalie used the subway. As for the women, she kept away from the shopping district, the avenues. She was thoroughly lost as she would have been in another country, so far as these people were concerned.

Had it not been for his mother's insistence that no publicity be given her absence, Horace might have found trace of her, but Mrs. Crandell had demanded a promise that he would do nothing that would in any way cause gossip. Natalie, was of course, missed but a hint that she was spending some time with her own people had the desired effect—so far as any open criticism went. If people talked, they did so between themselves, and neither Horace or his mother were cognizant.

Mr. Harwood, Natalie's new employer, was a sort of broker in a small way. Natalie was his only employee. The office in which they worked was small, its windows on a court. The work was light, the hours short, yet Natalie wasn't quite comfortable. Often she found Mr. Harwood's eyes upon her, a peculiar expression on his face. He was inclined to talk, to visit with her in a manner she had not known between employer and employee. He was curious about her. Natalie sensed his curiosity and became more than ever secretive, parrying his questions, changing the subject when possible.

One day he asked: "Aren't you going to tell me why you left your last position? You are capable, a good worker—far too good for this position, although I pay all it is worth. Come, tell me why you left. Why you are here?"

"I told you, Mr. Harwood, my reasons were purely personal."

"You are very pretty. Did he make love to you?" Harwood asked coarsely, leering at her.

"No, indeed. He was a gentleman," Natalie replied, flushing.

"Perhaps you—" Something in Natalie's face made him hesitate, but intuitively she sensed he had been about to say something she would resent.

"Even so no one could have blamed him," he went on. "It isn't often so pretty a girl escapes admiration."

Natalie made no reply, but after the incident she took on an added aloofness. She realized that should she lose this place, even should he give her a reference, it would be hard to get another one. A reference from him would be worth little as far as bettering herself went.

"Come and dine with me tonight, Miss Horton," he said. "I dislike to eat alone, and am remaining down town this evening."

"No, thank you, Mr. Harwood."

"But why? Give me a good reason."

"I never accept invitations from an employer, never have."

"Then it is time you did, especially as I am your employer. Come, don't be so silly. We'll have a good dinner, and perhaps take in a show."

"No thank you. I prefer to go home. I understand your kindness in asking me, but please do not expect me to accept any invitations. I shall do my best for you in the office. Out of it my time is all occupied."

Natalie had spoken very quietly but there was finality in her voice. Harwood flushed angrily. He said no more.

"He'll soon let me go," Natalie said to herself as she noted. And a sort of terror for the future took possession of her. She was absolutely dependent now upon what she earned with him. Her doctor's bill, some little things she needed, and her moving had taken the little surplus Mr. Marshall had given her.

Her one extravagance was an evening paper. In that she often saw either Horace or his mother mentioned. On the very day that Harwood asked her to dine with him she read that Horace and his mother had sailed for Europe.

A feeling of utter loneliness swept over her. If Natalie had had a lurking hope that Horace would find her she never had acknowledged it to herself; yet the depth of her feeling, when she knew he had left the country, might well have been caused by such a hope.

Late that night she walked past the darkened house that had been her home. And as she looked, slow tears coursed down her cheeks. Yet as she moved away she stubbornly murmured:

"I did right. The only thing a 'misfit' could do."

STEEL PLANTS. SURRENDER TO SHORTER HOURS

Announcement Made By
Harding in Farewell
To Continent
TALKS AT TACOMA
Chief Executive Enroute
For Northern Section of
United States

Tacoma, Wash., July 6.—President Harding's farewell to continental United States was signaled by an announcement by him of the surrender of the American steel manufacturers to the eight-hour day in all branches of the steel industry.

The announcement was made by the president in his speech at the stadium here just before embarking on the transport Henderson for Alaska. It included correspondence between the president and representatives of the steel manufacturers, headed by Judge Elbert H. Gary, in which they stated their willingness to abolish the 12-hour day and institute the eight-hour day as soon as sufficient labor is available for the change.

The president regarded the action of the steel manufacturers as a most favorable omen of the coming of a time when the 12-hour schedule shall no longer obtain in any branch of American industry. Making public for the first time the correspondence exchanged between the white house and steel group, the president congratulated the latter upon their acquiescence in the popular demand for shorter hours in the steel industry.

In making the report from the steel manufacturers part of his speech, the president pointed out that in many ways the nation is making progress in social evolution. The people are constantly striving for conditions of greater inspiration and fit contentment," he said, and the action of the steel representatives constitutes "a very notable forward step." One of the greater avenues of progress in American life, the president added, lies in the constant recognition by American industry of its obligations to our society as a whole, and that many of our most successful steps in social progress are made through the voluntary action of industry itself "in amelioration of those hardships that have grown from the rapid growth of industry." He continued:

Pledge Received.
"Early in the administration, feeling that a working day of this length was an anachronism in American life, that regardless of any other consideration, it did not permit of the proper development of citizenship and family life, I suggested to the steel industry that they should appoint a committee to develop methods for its abolition. After an investigation extending over some 18 months, the steel manufacturers came to the conclusion that in view of the present shortage of labor such a revolution in the industry was infeasible. Upon the receipt of this report I still felt that a pledge on the part of the steel manufacturers that they would undertake to respond to manifest public opinion in this matter would be welcomed by our people as a whole and would be received as a great boon by American workers. It is in response to this suggestion that I have received the pledge to which I have referred.

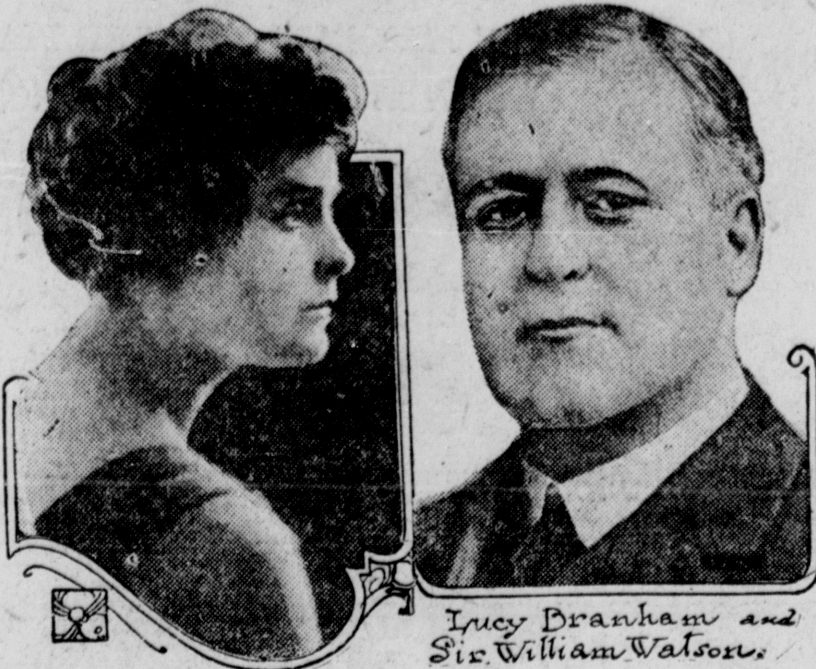

"I wish to congratulate the steel industry on this important step. It will heal a sore in American industrial life which has been the cause of infinite struggle and bitterness for over a generation and it marks an accomplishment from the conscience of industry itself, a recognition of responsibility from employer to employee that gives us faith in right solutions of the many tangled problems that are the concomitant of the rapid growth of America. It is an example that I trust the few other continuous processes in industry which still maintain the 12 hour shift may follow. I should be proud if my administration were marked by the final passing of the 12-hour working day in American life."

The president also renewed his plea to build up an American merchant marine. He told of the defeat of the subsidy bill, which, he said, seemed to him the best solution offered, although congress thought otherwise.

ROCKED BY EXPLOSION.

Dover, O., July 6.—Mineral City, 12 miles east of here, was rocked when 12 sticks of dynamite exploded, one-half mile from the village. The dynamite is believed to have been stolen by boys. Every window within a radius of half a mile of the explosion was shattered, young trees uprooted and poles splintered.

DOES "PETTICOAT GOVERNMENT" RULE?

Sir William Watson, noted English poet, has asserted that America is a nation of "women worshippers," that the United States is ruled by a "petticoat government" and that American women were primarily responsible for the eighteenth amendment and subsequent more or less prohibition. Miss Lucy Branham, Carnegie medal winner for heroism and a leader of the National Woman's Party, has characterized his statements as "bunk." America, she said, is "male-ruled," and women haven't the least share "of the political or economic energy which is their just due." Chief credit for prohibition, she added, must go to the middle class business man, who could not afford to drink and did not want to see his workers drunk.

CABINET IN SHARP CONFLICT OVER POLICIES FOR ALASKA

Powerful Fleet of Revenue Cutters Will be Employed To
Check Activities of Lawbreakers, Whose Operations Are Becoming Bolder

Aboard U. S. S. Henderson, enroute to Alaska with President Harding, July 6.—President Harding is Alaska bound today with a sharp conflict existing within his cabinet over the policies that should be adopted in governing the vast northern territory.

How serious this cabinet division may be, remains to be determined but it prevails and the controversy likely will be the subject of a great many conferences between the President and his cabinet aides who are accompanying him into the far north.

The cabinet split hinges about the control of Alaska. Dr. Hubert Work, secretary of the Interior believes that

TRAMP SOUGHT BY POLICE—SUSPECTED OF GIRL'S MURDER

Scarsdale, N. Y., July 6.—Finger prints on a pasteboard cracker box discarded by a hungry negro tramp before he brutally slashed the body of pretty Dorothy Kaufman, 21, discovered in the home of Magruder Craighead, may solve the mystery surrounding the terrible death of the young governess.

By the side of the body of the titian-haired Maryland country girl, who had come to the Craighead home only recently, the police found a bloody knife with a seven-inch blade. The handle was covered with finger marks showing clearly in the smear of the girl's lifeblood.

The finger-marked knife and the finger-marked box now are in the hands of experts to determine if the marks are the same. The authorities have a good description of the tramp, who was seen to discard the cracker box in the road near the Craighead home shortly before the girl is believed to have been slain.

The body was found by Miss Madeline Harmer, daughter of a neighbor, who had been staying with Miss Kaufman while the Craighead family was at Midson, Conn. Miss Harmer told the police she saw Miss Kaufman Tuesday afternoon and did not again until she found her body Thursday.

The girl apparently made a brave struggle to save her honor and her life, but the wounds indicated that she was stabbed in the back without warning and was weakened at the outset of her fight for life. There were seven stab wounds in her back, several in her right side, and her left hand was badly slashed, as though she had seized the murderer's knife. The knife was found lying near the body.

Police are faced by the fact that there was no indication of a struggle in the house, and nothing outside of the place to indicate that the girl might have been killed outdoors and carried into the house. The tramp, who is being hunted by police, appeared at a golf club near the Craighead home Tuesday afternoon and afterwards was seen near the Craighead home. Miss Kaufman came from Somerset county, Maryland, where she had taught school. The police have asked the Maryland authorities to locate her parents, who are believed to live in Somerset county.

Defends Matron of Girls' School and Refutes Charges

Delaware, O., July 6.—Submission of testimony by persons supporting Mrs. Mae Stannard in her appeal for reinstatement, following her recent removal by State Welfare Director Harper as chief matron at the Girls' Industrial school, near here, will mark the hearings to be conducted today and Saturday by the state Civil Service Commission at the school.

The hearing, it is expected, will be transferred to Columbus, Monday. Although the prosecution practically rested its case late yesterday it is understood that counsel for Director Harper will call a number of witnesses before the hearing is concluded at Columbus.

Dr. H. S. MacAyeal, Akron, former state welfare director, who took the stand late yesterday, was the first witness called on behalf of Mrs. Stannard. Dr. MacAyeal was followed by Dr. Edmund S. Baehr, psychiatrist at the state bureau of juvenile research, Columbus, who also testified in favor of Mrs. Stannard.

MacAyeal testified he had appointed Mrs. Stannard as chief matron after an exacting nationwide canvass of prison canteen workers, and that she had been highly indorsed and stood first in the civil service examination for the position. He said the use of private automobiles of the institution and the payment for them had been with his knowledge and approval because the state cars were in a hopeless condition. In regard to padlocks being used on girls' doors, Dr. MacAyeal said that they were placed there after Mrs. Stannard had complained about the old system.

Dr. MacAyeal declared he had authorized the transfer of girls from this institution to the Marysville prison after the attorney general had told him that he had full authority to do so. "I gave Mrs. Stannard a free hand in reorganizing the school, including installation of the honor system, a demoted cottage, and the abolishment of corporal punishment," Dr. MacAyeal testified.

"I was greatly pleased with Mrs. Stannard's work and her treatment of the girls," said MacAyeal, "and I never knew of any cruelties under her administration."

New York, July 6.—A charge of murder was filed today against Mrs. Louis Arnold, 46, mother of five children who confessed to having stabbed to death Vincent Clavacca, father of nine children, after she learned that he was a married man and had deceived her. At her arraignment Mrs. Arnold admitted killing her lover.

"I did not know he was married," she said. "He told me he would marry me. I believed him for seven years. Then I discovered he had a wife and nine children of his own. He told me he had other wives in other towns, too."

GOVERNMENT TO START NEW WAR AGAINST LIQUOR, NARCOTIC AND ALIEN SMUGGLERS

Split Hinges About Whether Vast Northern Territory
Should be Placed Under Control of Single Department.

Washington, July 6.—New plans for a more vigorous campaign to combat smugglers of liquor, narcotics and aliens, through an enlarged coast guard service, were outlined by government officials today.

Since a scheme to employ the army and navy for this purpose has been abandoned, the government has decided to concentrate its efforts hereafter in a more powerful fleet of revenue cutters.

Dry leaders in Congress are being lined up behind a program for greatly increased appropriations for the coast guard. Other angles of the plan call for more funds also for the immigration and customs services.

Officials said today that the extraordinary measures must soon be adopted to hold the smugglers in check.

Their operations are steadily becoming bolder according to official reports. Daily advices from prohibition and customs authorities show that smugglers are extending their activity, and are meeting with little resistance, while public enforcement agencies are handicapped by insufficient forces.

The administration may insist upon an additional appropriation of $6,000,000 to supplement the $10,000,000 allowed the coast guard this fiscal year, to permit expansion of the service.

STRIKING ENGLISH DOCK WORKERS ARE FORCING UP PRICES

More Than 50,000 Men
Reported Out in British Ports

London, July 6.—Disregarding the orders of union leaders to return to work, the dockworkers are gaining recruits and the strike is growing in many ports.

It is estimated that 18,000 are now out in London, making with the men who have gone out in other cities a total of 50,000 added to Britain's idle army. Many stevedores and porters swelled the ranks of the strikers and the railway men threaten to refuse to handle any cargoes unless unloaded by unionists.

The Daily Herald, labor organ, comments: "We are convinced that no good ever comes from breaking agreements made by responsible and properly authorized representatives." Meanwhile hundreds of ships are lying idle, their cargoes held up. Food is decaying and fruit is rotting on the docks and general business is becoming dislocated. An effect of the strike is shown in the rise of a cent a pound on refrigerated meat. The shortage of flour is expected to lead to an increase in the price of bread.

The trouble was caused by attempts of the employers to enforce an agreement for a reduction of a shilling a day in the men's pay. The men claim that the reduction is not justified in the high prices for food and clothing. A great mass meeting called on the government to order an immediate inquiry into the cost of living. To add to the gloom the great railway workers' union is refusing to accept a reduction of six shillings a week in wages of the shopworkers and threatens a general tie-up.

JOINT MEETING ON WAGE ISSUE IS IN SESSION

Result of Conference Will Mean Peace or War in Anthracite Regions

SEPTEMBER 1 IS DATE

Unless Agreement Reached
Walkout for That Date
Seems Inevitable

Atlantic City, N. J., July 6.—The question of peace or war in the coal fields hangs in the balance as the anthracite joint wage conference prepares to begin what promises to be a long series of negotiations in an effort to draft a wage scale to take the place of the present agreement which expires August 31. The first session of the conference will be held this afternoon.

Unless an agreement is reached it seems inevitable that a strike will be called for September 1. Representatives of the operators now here for what is regarded as the most important industrial conference in years, declined to say whether they would support the movement for "open covenants openly arrived at." It is believed, however, that they will insist on secret sessions.

As the hour of the conference approached there was every indication that both sides expected there would be a long drawn out affair with an agreement if one is to be reached commencing only after days of tedious negotiations.

Little was expected to be accomplished at the opening session beyond effecting preliminaries, organization and the formal proclamation of the miners' demands. These demands, as formulated at the Scranton meeting of the workers last week, embrace 11 specific points, summarized as follows:

1—Complete recognition of the Mine Workers of America, with a two year contract beginning September 1, 1923.

2—Twenty per cent increase in contract wage scales, all men to be granted an increase of $2 per day.

3—Uniformity and equalization of all day rates to skilled mechanics with ninety cents an hour as a basis.

4—Eight hour day for all men employed in and around collieries irrespective of their occupation.

5—Where coal is paid for by the car, the ton basis shall be 2,240 pounds.

6—That the consideration rate for work under abnormal conditions and for dead work equal the average daily earnings of contract miners under normal conditions.

7—That jack hammers and other tools be furnished the miners free of charge.

8—Minimum rate of 20 cents per inch for refuse and 30 cents per inch for blasting top and bottom rock.

9—That umpire shall render decisions within 30 days after disposal of cases by conciliation board.

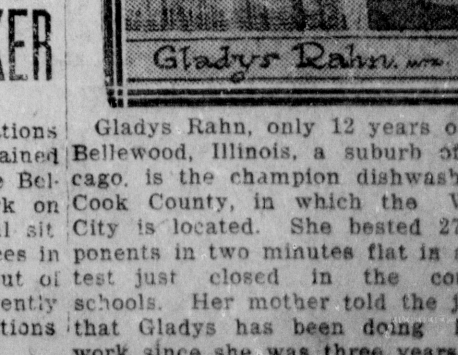

10—That wage schedules be brought up to date and that agreement on rates for new work be made before starting such work.

11—That employees of stripping contractors be brought under same scale of wages as demanded by miners.

In addition, negotiators for the miners are urged to secure an agreement regarding the price of coal charged employees.

Asked for a statement regarding the miners' demands, Lewis said the demands spoke for themselves.

EX-PUPILS BEGIN EXODUS FROM HOME AFTER RE-UNION

More than 500 members of the Ex-Pupils' Association of the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home, who attended one of the best reunions in the history of the organization here this week, began their exodus Friday.

The reunion closed Thursday night with the annual ball, which because of recent rains and threatening weather was held in one of the school buildings. The ball is usually staged on the dancing platform erected on the lawn in front of the Administration Building.

Ex-pupils who, years ago, had worked in the printing department, learning the trade and helping to publish the Home Weekly, organ of the institution, issued a "Reunion Extra" of the Weekly Thursday. Men and women, who had long since given up the printing profession and others, who are still following that trade, took up "stick" and "rule" and lived over again days when they were pupils at the institution.

News of the reunion and other copy for the paper was written by the ex-pupils and they also did all of the printing and press work. Those who assisted in getting out the special paper were I. W. Thrasher, Newport, Ky., past association president and chairman of the building committee who is connected with the Methodist Book Concern, Cincinnati; George Wareheim, Cleveland; E. C. Cobus, Mrs. Alpha Gardner, Lakeside; Earl C. Bear, Cleveland; J. A. Berry, Dayton; James Baxter, Xenia; James H. Thrasher, Homer O. LeFever and Warren Moore, of Springfield; C. Frank Betz, Indianapolis News, Indianapolis; J. L. Benjamin, Cincinnati; Dr. George H. Lamme, Cincinnati; James Fluker, Dayton; Delmond W. Lawrence, Lorain; W. A. Shoemaker, Dayton; J. H. Augustus, Springfield; Mrs. Nellie Smith Cyman, Lancaster and Miss Anna Belle Flowers, Columbus.

After the extra was issued, copies were sold for ten cents apiece, and the proceeds applied to the building fund, with which the proposed Memorial Library will be erected. The association Thursday accepted the plans of Robert S. Harsh, state architect, for the library which will be erected as a memorial to Civil War veterans and the women who inspired establishment of the Xenia institution.

The structure will be located east of the Administration Building. It will be one story in height, 40 by 100 feet in dimensions and constructed of steel and brick. The cost will be about $20,000 of which amount approximately half has been raised.

Making Railroad History in 1923

Pennsylvania Railroad System
The Standard Railroad of the World

DURING the remainder of the present year the railroads will be confronted with the task of handling the greatest volume of traffic in American history. The demands for freight service in that period seem certain to exceed the peaks of war time and the boom of 1920.

To make good in 1923 means that all previous records must be broken. That is a big job for railroad managers and employees. There must be no failure—for failure would be a national disaster. In meeting the situation the railroads have solemnly pledged themselves to a vast program of concerted and co-operative action.

The success of that program is contingent upon the wholehearted support of the public, the loyalty of every man in the railroad service, and freedom from the ill-timed and demoralizing interjection of politics. Any man who strives to make the railroads a political football in 1923 when they are grappling with the most difficult and momentous task in their history, may be stigmatized as an enemy of good government.

It fights pimples! It fights skin eruptions! It always wins! Mr. V. D. Schaff, 557 15th street, Washington, D. C., writes:

"I tried for years to get relief from a bad case of boils. Everything failed until I took S. S. S. I am now absolutely cured, and it was S. S. S. that did it."

MATTERS OF PRINCIPLE.

When a man tells you that it is a matter of principle with him to do such and such a thing you usually find that he is trying to justify an act of a somewhat ungenerous character—such as entering a complaint against someone for discourtesy or neglect, or exacting the fulfillment of an obligation under harsh conditions, or pointing out with blunt frankness a friend's shortcomings, or refusing to contribute to the aid of a cause or an individual, or declining to make a loan to a friend. Perhaps every one of the acts that he thus justifies needs no justification, is in itself right and proper in the circumstances; unfortunately, explaining it on the ground of principle is likely to excite a question as to the nature of the principles that govern the person. For they seem to concern his own dignity and importance exclusively, his own rights and convenience—the duty of other people toward him rather than his duty toward other people.

Now the only principles on which a man may well pride himself are those that he somehow shrinks from announcing. It is a matter of principle with all decent people not to lie or cheat or betray, but anyone who called attention to some act of his as illustrating the principles of honesty and decency by which he was guided would be regarded with astonishment and even suspicion. The real "matters of principle" are the inner foundations on which the whole structure of character rests, and people do not talk about them, call attention to them, or explain them. Whenever we hear anyone say, "It is a matter of principle with me to," and so forth, we may be sure that it isn't any revelation of principle that he is about to give, but merely a side light on his egotism.

SUMMER FOOT TREATMENTS

I've headed this chat "summer foot treatments" because I want to emphasize the fact that the feet need different care in the hot weather from what they do when it's cold. For one thing, they are apt to swell with the heat, and they perspire more readily. But it's the best time to treat them if they've been painful or unhealthy for in summer you wear low light shoes, which permit greater ventilation, and you can wear canvas slippers, which come nearer the ideal—the ideal being a sandal.

About treatments—if the feet perspire, powder them every day or twice a day. Use the fine sort of talcum made for babies. It's pure and soothing and any amount can be used. If you can't afford this, or if your feet are not very sensitive, take some laundry starch, sift the powder from the lumps—crush the lumps to make more powder—and mix one ounce of boracic acid powder to every six or eight of the starch. This is cooling, soothing and antiseptic, and better than baby powder if the feet have a strong odor. In this case, however, use half starch and half boracic.

Set bathing is very good for the feet. It makes them less tender. It is more cleansing than even soap and water, it does wonders in preventing corns. But if there are corns follow the usual treatment, soak the feet in hot water, preferably with bath salts added, or soda, cut or file off the corns, paint with collodion, rub every day afterwards with cold cream.

It is a good plan to rest the feet during the hot weather by wearing low broad heel canvas oxfords, and for dress-up low heel canvas pumps, or plain kid sandals with heels as low as possible.

Kellogg's Bran is Guaranteed to give relief BECAUSE IT IS ALL BRAN!

Relief from constipation, whether it be mild or chronic, will follow the regular, every-day eating of Kellogg's Bran. We have thousands of letters from former sufferers who tell us that the natural "bulk-action" of this wonderful cereal product has given relief they have not known for years. We guarantee that Kellogg's Bran will free the system from constipation because it is ALL BRAN—not a composition in which bran is added. If constipation is to be permanently relieved, you must eat ALL BRAN—that's why your physician will recommend Kellogg's for constipation.

Constipation creates toxic conditions which poison the blood and every organ of the body. It slows you down mentally and physically, and creates sick headaches, nausea, bad breath, pimples—finally, in many cases, leading to Bright's disease, diabetes and other dreaded illnesses. You must fight constipation with Kellogg's Bran regularly if you want health!

You'll say Kellogg's Bran is really delicious—it has a nut-like flavor that appeals to the most fastidious appetite. Eat it as a cereal, sprinkled on hot or cold cereals or cooked with hot cereals, allowing two tablespoonfuls of bran for each person. Be certain to eat at least two tablespoonfuls each day; as much with each meal in chronic cases. Kellogg's is delicious made into muffins, macaroons, raisin bread, griddlecakes. Recipes in every package. Kellogg's Bran is served by leading hotels, clubs and restaurants in individual packages. It is sold by all grocers.

Today's Talk

"THE HUGE AND THOUGHTFUL NIGHT"

The above line is from the writings of Walt Whitman. Whitman to me, is one of the greatest of those who have made America and the world great—because of the appreciation which he expressed, and left.

Whitman saw beauty in everything. He saw mystery, wonder and the manifestation of miracles all about him. All life was a strange revelation.

All through his writings you come across expressions just as beautiful as the one quoted at the head of this talk.

When you think of the night as Whitman did, then you feel that you have something of especial beauty coming to you as the shadows of the dying day close in upon you.

Sometimes I think of the soul as just "getting up" at night time—when all is quiet, when the little worries and irritations and unhappy bickerings of the day have all melted away.

"The huge and thoughtful night"—all decked out with its dome of shining stars, each individual star seeming to twinkle out a small message of love and best wishes from its seat in the sky to every pair of eyes looking up from the earth beneath.

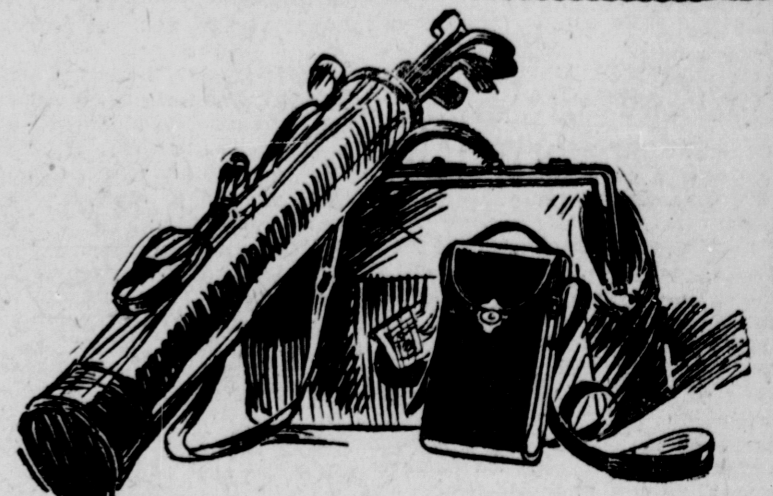

How huge and thoughtful is this night under tropic skies, with the moon creeping up in the distance and towering palm trees bending over to catch the ripple of the ocean waters that so noiselessly tiptoe toward the shore. How huge also, from the still mountainside where mammoth peaks, fringed with snow, reach up to greet the glitter of the heavens. And how huge, again, far out in the country—perhaps from the porch of some farm house, with the cricket's chirp, the night owl's hoot, or the whippoorwill's song to touch the air of the night.

After you have said goodbye to the day and to those whom you love—whether with your voice or spirit—take a look into the face of "the huge and thoughtful night" and then thank God that you are alive!

TOY BALLOON CAUSES FIRE.

DUNKLE BUYS OUT KENNEDY INTEREST IN GROCERY STORES

W. J. Kennedy, president and founder of the Kennedy Grocery Company, has sold his interests in the corporation to R. E. Dunkle, secretary and treasurer of the company, it was announced Friday.

The transfer was made Thursday, Mr. Dunkle assuming immediately charge of the operation of the business. The sale includes Mr. Kennedy's interests in three grocery stores in Xenia owned and operated by the company.

They are: Store No. 1, at 129 East Main Street; Store No. 2, at 33 West Main Street; and Store No. 3, at 9 Cincinnati Avenue. All stores are operated on the cash and carry plan, having been founded on that principle by Mr. Kennedy five years ago. The same policy will be continued, according to Mr. Dunkle, who now owns controlling stock in the corporation.

Mr. Kennedy founded Store No. 1 five years ago, and later extended his operations to start Store No. 2. For a time he operated a store on the same principle in Yellow Springs. He operated the business privately until a year and one-half ago, when Mr. Dunkle bought an interest and the company was incorporated.

After the incorporation, the company inaugurated two stores, at 9 Cincinnati Avenue, now known as Store No. 3, and at Main Street and Dayton Avenue, which was known as Store No. 4. This store was later discontinued.

Mr. Kennedy has not announced his plans for the future.

LIGHTNING STRIKES GEYER RESIDENCE

Damage estimated at about $50 was caused when lightning struck the George D. Geyer residence, 512 North Galloway street, during a rain and electrical storm Tuesday shortly before noon. The lightning damaged the chimney tore off plastering in the bath room and ripped off several shingles. Soot from the chimney escaped from an open draught in the basement and showered newly washed clothes hanging there.

LIGHTED LANTERN USED NEAR GASOLINE AND THEN--

Graham used a lighted lantern when he went to a shed at his home to draw gasoline from a tank. The shed and its contents, including a wheat blinder, corn harvester and minor farm implements were burned up.

JAMES M. DILLON DIES SUDDENLY IN COLUMBUS FRIDAY

James M. Dillon, 62, former Xenian died suddenly Friday at his home in Columbus.

Brief news of his death was received by Xenia friends Friday afternoon. No cause of death was given. Mr. Dillon received a fractured skull when he was struck by an automobile in Columbus while crossing a street about six months ago.

For months after the accident Mr. Dillon was confined to a Columbus hospital, and for several weeks his condition was serious. He later slowly recovered and had been at his home for some time. He was planning to resume his position as traveling salesman for the Dunn & McCarthy Shoe Company, Auburn, N. Y., when his sudden death occurred. Friends here believe his death was due to injuries.

Mr. Dillon made his home here for many years some time ago, and was interested in The Xenia Shoe Manufacturing Company, for which firm he was a traveling salesman for years. After severing his connection with the local company he removed his family to Columbus, where he made his home.

Surviving is his widow and one son Ralph Dillon who has been covering his father's route since his illness. An announcement of time of his funeral has not been received here.

Styles BY LENORE

One of the decorative items of the summer outfit is the colorful woodblock linen coat which may be worn with a pleated skirt and sport blouse, or over a cotton frock. It is also equally attractive when made of one of the novelty cottons, embroidered all over in a rich medley of colors.

Usually these coats are most chic when cut on perfectly straight lines like the model shown at the left, which is bound all around in black, but for a large busted woman they fit more gracefully when made with a band that fits snugly about the hips.

For country wear a very good-looking costume is made of English flannel, caramel shade with red and green overplaid for the dress, cut on chemise lines. A Lanvin green coat with collar, cuffs, and pockets trimmed with plaid, completes the costume, the odd cut of the coat, revealing an organdie jabot, being one of its new points.

One other point—note the little felt hats which these twin ladies are wearing. French women are preferring it to the cloche. It is just as small and snug, but turned up in front, and they call it the Breton.

GREENE COUNTY, Pursuant to command of an order of sale in partition issued by the Common Pleas Court of Greene Coun- ty, Ohio, to me directed and delivered, I will offer for sale at public auction at the West door of the Court House in Xenia, Ohio, on Saturday, July 14, 1923 at 10 o'clock A. M. the following real estate: Situate in the County of Greene, State of Ohio and in the Village of Bellbrook. Being all of In Lot No. 3 as the same is designated, numbered and known on the recorded plat of said Village of Bellbrook. Also twelve (12) feet off the North side of Lot 4 as the same is designated, num- bered and known on the recorded plat of said Village. Said 12 foot strip being described as follows: Beginning at the S. E. corner of Lot No. 3, thence S. 12 feet, thence West to the West line of said lot No. 4, thence North 12 feet to the S. W. corner of Lot No. 3, thence East with the North line of Lot No. 4 to the place of beginning. Said real estate is situated in the Village of Bellbrook on the West side of South Main Street. Said premises have been appraised at $2700.00 and cannot be sold for less than two-thirds of the appraise- ment. Terms of sale Cash. Sold by order of court in case No. 16187 where- in Harry A. Davis is plaintiff and John C. Davis, et al, are defendants. MARCUS SHOUP, Attorney for plaintiff. MORRIS SHARP, Sheriff of Greene County, Ohio. 6-8-15-22-23-7-6 To save the lives of pedes- trians this new safety-bumper has been offered for testing to the Chicago Safety Council. By means of a mechanical device the driver is able to drop the bumper as a fender, and a furler apron is extended upward at the same time, thus making a can- vas hammock at the front of the automobile. This scoops up the victim and carries him along un- hurt until the car can be brought to a stop. FEDERAL PRISONERS MAY BE CONFINED IN COUNTY JAIL Federal prisoners may be confined in the Greene County Jail soon. Crowded jail conditions at Dayton may lead to prisoners being kept for federal action being sent here, it is said. U. S. Marshal Stanley Borkwith ex- pressed such an opinion to Sheriff Morris Sharp in Dayton Thursday. Marshal Borkwith said crowded condi- tions would make it necessary to find another jail for temporary use at least. The Marshal was informed the Greene County Jail has 16 cells, in each of which two prisoners might be kept. There are only four prisoners in the County Jail now. Marshal Borkwith said he may take advantage of the available cells here by sending federal prisoners to this city for confinement. SECOND ATTEMPT TO HALT BOND ISSUE FOR SCHOOL HOUSE The second legal attempt to pre- vent the erection of a centralized school District was started in Com- mon Pleas Court Friday when a peti- tion was filed by Ham Fields, and others asking that the Board of Edu- cation be restrained from selling a $75,000 bond issue advertised for sale, July 14. The plaintiffs are taxpayers in the district. They allege that the Board of Education has advertised $75,000 worth of bonds for sale July 14, to buy a site and build a school building. The petitioners allege the proceeds will be insufficient to construct an adequate school building and that the action would therefore be a wan- ton waste of funds and a wanton abuse of the discretion of the board. The revenues of the school district will be insufficient to operate such a school and that as a result the dis- trict would become hopelessly involv- ed financially. They ask for a tem- porary restraining order and that on the final hearing it be made perman- ent. The petitioners are, Ham Fields, H. M. Thomas, W. Berryhill, C. M. Austin, J. F. Penewit, J. S. Turner, C. F. Schwartz, E. H. Rhonemus, George Penewit, Clem Penewit, C. V. Mason, J. W. Anthony, W. E. Glo- ser, O. A. Hook, Esom Earnhart, J. R. Penewit, J. R. McBee, F. L. Sheets, Warren G. CHAUTAUQUA TENT WILL BE PITCHED ON EAST CHURCH ST.

The Chautauqua Site Committee announces that the Chautauqua tent will be pitched on the lot just east of Mr. Lester Buell's residence on East Church Street. The site will be more convenient than any that has ever been secured for the Chautauqua it is said.

The proceeds from the sale of season tickets will go for the benefit of local charities and will be divided between the Red Cross and the Social Service League. The committee urges the buying of the season tickets as the larger the sales the larger will be the amount that is turned over to the Social Service and Red Cross. All of the proceeds from the single admissions will go to the Redpath Company. The season tickets must be bought before the 15th. The price for adults is $2.50 for the season and $1.25 for children's tickets. Any one wishing tickets who has not been solicited may get them by phoning Miss Fannie Haynes of West Church Street.

The committee reports that the sale of tickets is going well but the committee is anxious for a large season ticket sale in order that the amount for the local organization may be substantial ones. The cost of single admissions to only three or four entertainments will be as much as the cost of the entire season tickets so all planning to attend any of the numbers will find it a saving to have the season tickets.

All ticket solicitors are asked to report to the Secretary Wednesday, July 11th.

FESS URGES WORLD COURT IN ADDRESS

Senator S. D. Fess of Yellow Springs urged U. S. Cooperation in the world court plan in an address before the International Christian Citizenship Conference at Winona Lake Ind.

American history, more than any other national record, demonstrates the success of arbitration in international disputes, Senator Fess said. He declared that international concord can come only from international contracts in urging delegates to support the judicial process as against the war process of settlement.

"If the court was obligatory," he said, "the United States would not adhere to it, and I should certainly oppose it because we have not reached the place where the United States can be forced to submit any question that might come up to some court. The provision is that only disputes are submitted that are submitted by both parties. If one of them says no, then, of course, it is not submitted."

HELD ON CHARGE OF KIDNAPING GIRL

Phil Ricco, 37, Fifth street and Wayne Avenue, Dayton, is being held by Dayton Police on a charge of criminal assault growing out of the alleged kidnaping of Helen Mendhall, 13, of 46 Green street, Dayton, Wednesday night.

Ricco is alleged to have kidnaped the girl near her home, taken her to a lonely spot near Alpha in this country, and is said to have attacked her. The girl was forced to walk home, police were told, and arrived home at eight o'clock Thursday morning. Ricco's arrest followed.

decorated with colored sealing wax:

A Sealing Wax Bag-Top.—A clever woman of my acquaintance originated this idea: She went to a five-and-ten-cent store and bought a nickel bag-top and chain-handle (the kind to which one sews velvet to make a handbag). This metal top was decorated with raised flowers. She was not satisfied with her purchase, so thought she would try covering the entire thing (except the link-chain) with different colored sealing wax. She simply heated sticks of black, dark blue, gold and dark green sealing wax and daubed these onto the metal bag-top in a bit-or-miss pattern, making the spots about the size of a dime. Proceed as follows: Hold the daubed bag-top over the flame a minute or two, to remelt the wax so that it spreads and blends. Make a brown velvet bag to attach to this bag-top.

A Sealing Wax Flower Bowl.—Any prettily shaped pottery bowl or vase may be used to cover with sealing wax. Put on the wax indaubs, then hold the vase over the flame, to blend the wax and glaze it.

How to Paint with Sealing Wax.—Put small pieces of sealing wax in a saucepan and heat slowly till melted. Then, to three parts of this melted wax add one part of denatured alcohol (which keeps the wax soft). Use as any paint.

Powder-Puff Holder for the Bureau.—Take a long-stemmed wine glass or fruit cup large enough to hold a powder puff. Put small sealing wax roses around the top of this glass and on the flat glass disc at the bottom. To make these roses put a tiny drop of melted sealing wax on the glass, make a hole in the center of this drop (using a steel nut-pick), then make three slashes in the drop around the hole. Sometimes just a figure "S" will give the effect of rose-petals on one of these tiny roses. Cluster the rose-heads close together, making one blue rose, one yellow and one pink (or lavender). Make a tiny green leaf at one side. Tie a pink bow to the ivory ring at the top of the powder-puff and place the puff in its decorated glass holder.

THE MISFIT

By Jane Phelps

POIGNANT LONELINESS

Chapter XXXIX

New York has fitly been called "the hiding place for anguished souls," and so Natalie found it was not strange that she met no one she had known as Mrs. Crandell. Even Horace's business friends were all men of wealth who went to business in their motor cars, returning the same way, while Natalie used the subway. As for the women, she kept away from the shopping district, the avenues. She was as thoroughly lost as she would have been in another country, so far as these people were concerned.

Had it not been for his mother's insistence that no publicity be given her absence, Horace might have found trace of her, but Mrs. Crandell had demanded a promise that he would do nothing that would in any way cause gossip. Natalie, was of course, missed but a hint that she was spending some time with her own people had the desired effect—so far as any open criticism went. If people talked, they did so between themselves, and neither Horace or his mother were cognizant.

Mr. Harwood, Natalie's new employer, was a sort of broker in a small way. Natalie was his only employee. The office in which they worked was small, its windows on a court. The work was light, the hours short, yet Natalie wasn't quite comfortable. Often she found Mr. Harwood's eyes upon her, a peculiar expression on his face. He was inclined to talk, to visit with her in a manner she had not known between employer and employee. He was curious about her. Natalie sensed his curiosity and became more than ever secretive, parrying his questions, changing the subject when possible.

One day he asked: "Aren't you going to tell me why you left your last position? You are capable, a good worker—far too good for this position, although I pay all it is worth. Come, tell me why you left. Why you are here?"

"I told you, Mr. Harwood, my reasons were purely personal."

"You are very pretty. Did he make love to you?" Harwood asked coarsely, leering at her.

"No, indeed. He was a gentleman," Natalie replied, flushing.

"Perhaps you—" Something in Natalie's face made him hesitate, but intuitively she sensed he had been about to say something she would resent. "Even so no one could have blamed him," he went on. "It isn't often so pretty a girl escapes admiration."

Natalie made no reply, but after the incident she took on an added aloofness. She realized that should she lose this place, even should he give her a reference, it would be hard to get another one. A reference from him would be worth little as far as bettering herself went.

"Come and dine with me tonight, Miss Horton," he said. "I dislike to eat alone, and am remaining down town this evening."

"No, thank you, Mr. Harwood."

"But why? Give me a good reason."

"I never accept invitations from an employer, never have."

"Then it is time you did, especially as I am your employer. Come, don't be so silly. We'll have a good dinner, and perhaps take in a show."

"No thank you. I prefer to go home."

I understand your kindness in asking me, but please do not expect me to accept any invitations. I shall do my best for you in the office. Out of it my time is all occupied."

Natalie had spoken very quietly but there was finality in her voice. Harwood flushed angrily. He said—no more.

"He'll soon let me go," Natalie said to herself as she noted. And a sort of terror for the future took possession of her. She was absolutely dependent now upon what she earned with him. Her doctor's bill, some little things she needed, and her moving had taken the little surplus Mr. Marshall had given her.

Her one extravagance was an evening paper. In that she often saw either Horace or his mother mentioned. On the very day that Harwood asked her to dine with him she read that Horace and his mother had sailed for Europe.

A feeling of utter loneliness swept over her. If Natalie had had a lurking hope that Horace would find her she never had acknowledged it to herself; yet the depth of her feeling, when she knew he had left the country, might well have been caused by such a hope.

Late that night she walked past the darkened house that had been her home. And as she looked, slow tears coursed down her cheeks. Yet as she moved away she stubbornly murmured:

"I did right. The only thing a 'misfit' could do."
